Masculinity and Spirituality in Victorian Culture
This page intentionally left blank
Masculinity and Spirituality in Victorian Culture

Edited by

Andrew Bradstock
Sean Gill
Anne Hogan
and
Sue Morgan
Contents

Acknowledgements vii

Notes on the Contributors ix

Introduction 1

Andrew Bradstock, Sean Gill, Anne Hogan and Sue Morgan

1 Soldiers and Saints: the Fighting Man and the Christian Life 10

J. R. Watson

2 The (Re)Gendering of High Anglicanism 27

Lori M. Miller

3 Victorian Masculinity and the Virgin Mary 44

Carol Marie Engelhardt

4 ‘Reading Men More Truly’: Charlotte Brontë’s Villette 58

Anne Hogan

5 Angry Yonge Men: Anger and Masculinity in the Novels of Charlotte M. Yonge 71

Catherine Wells-Cole

6 Aelred of Rievaulx, Same-Sex Desire and the Victorian Monastery 85

Frederick S. Roden

7 Man Apart: Priesthood and Homosexuality at the End of the Nineteenth Century 100

Philip Healy

8 Male Sexuality, Religion and the Problem of Action: John Addington Symonds on Arthur Hugh Clough 116

Howard J. Booth

9 ‘The Mightiest Evangel of the Alpine Club’: Masculinity and Agnosticism in the Alpine Writing of John Tyndall 134

Francis O’Gorman
Contents

10 ‘Slugs and Snails and Puppy Dogs’ Tails’? George Eliot, Masculinity and the (Ir)religion of Nationalism 149
Neil McCaw

11 Ecce Homo: Representations of Christ as the Model of Masculinity in Victorian Art and Lives of Jesus 164
Sean Gill

12 ‘Writing the Male Body’: Sexual Purity and Masculinity in The Vanguard, 1884–94 179
Sue Morgan

13 Soul-saving Partnerships and Pacifist Soldiers: the Ideal of Masculinity in the Salvation Army 194
Laura Lauer

14 ‘A Man of God is a Manly Man’: Spurgeon, Luther and ‘Holy Boldness’ 209
Andrew Bradstock

Index 226
Acknowledgements

We would like to thank Sandra Barwise and Debbie Hughes for their invaluable secretarial help; David Hirst and Ronald Haynes for equally vital technical support; Ruth Willats for her work at the copyediting stage; and Charmian Hearne and Eleanor Birne our editors at Macmillan for their enthusiasm for the book and sound advice and guidance during its production.

‘The Shadow of Death’, by William Holman Hunt, is reproduced as the frontispiece to this volume, by courtesy of Manchester City Art Galleries.
This page intentionally left blank
Notes on the Contributors

Howard J. Booth is Lecturer in English Literature in the Department of English and American Studies, University of Manchester. He is author of a number of articles on nineteenth- and twentieth-century literature, and co-editor of Modernism and Empire (2000).

Andrew Bradstock teaches church history and political theology at King Alfred's College, Winchester. With Anne Hogan he edited the companion volume to this, Women of Faith in Victorian Culture: Reassessing the Angel in the House (1998), and his other books include Saints and Sandinistas (1987) and Faith in the Revolution (1997). He has contributed the entry on Spurgeon to Biographical Dictionary of Literary Influences: The Nineteenth Century (2000).

Carol Marie Engelhardt completed her PhD in modern British history at Indiana University and is currently Assistant Professor of History at Wright State University, Dayton, Ohio. She is author of ‘The Paradigmatic Angel in the House: The Virgin Mary and Victorian Anglicans’ in Anne Hogan and Andrew Bradstock, eds, Women of Faith in Victorian Culture (1998), and of several reviews of books on Victorian religion for Victorian Studies.

Sean Gill is Senior Lecturer and Head of the Department of Theology and Religious Studies in the University of Bristol. His research and teaching interests are in the areas of religion, gender and sexuality, and his publications include A History of Women and the Church of England from the 18th Century to the Present (1994) and Campaigning for Justice, Truth and Love: A History and Reader of the Lesbian and Gay Christian Movement (1998).

Philip Healy is Deputy Director (Public Programmes), Oxford University, Department for Continuing Education. His publications include an edition of John Gray's Park: a fantastic story (1984) and a Foreword to Frederick Rolfe's The Desire and Pursuit of the Whole (1986).

Anne Hogan is Lecturer in English in the School of Culture and Language, University of Southampton New College, where she teaches the nineteenth-century novel and contemporary women’s writing. She is editor, with Andrew Bradstock, of the companion volume to this, Women of Faith in Victorian Culture: Reassessing the Angel in the House (1998).
Laura Lauer completed a D.Phil on Nonconformist churchwomen’s organisations in England, 1880–1920, in 1998, and is currently co-authoring a book on women’s spirituality in the nineteenth century. She has taught at St Hilda’s College, Oxford, and at the University of Liverpool.

Neil McCaw is Lecturer in English Studies at King Alfred’s College, Winchester, where he teaches nineteenth-century culture and literature. His publications include George Eliot and Victorian Historiography: Imagining the National Past (2000) as well as chapters and articles on Victorian Ireland, British Cultural Studies, and nineteenth-century historical writing.

Lori M. Miller is a PhD candidate at Indiana University. She is currently researching and writing her dissertation, ‘Gender Consciousness and Anglican Religious Orders, 1850–1920’. Her other research interests include nineteenth-century Ritualism, the history of education in Britain and the US and 1950s gender ideology in both countries.

Sue Morgan is Head of History at University College Chichester where she teaches modern gender and cultural history. She has published a monograph and several articles and chapters on women’s history, religious history and feminist theology. Her most recent works include ‘Feminist Approaches to the Study of Religion’ in Peter Connolly, ed., Approaches to the Study of Religion (1999) and A Passion for Purity: Ellice Hopkins and the politics of gender in the late-Victorian Church (1999). She is currently editing a collection of essays on women, religion and the dynamics of feminism in modern Britain and co-authoring a book on women and spirituality in modern England.

Francis O’Gorman is Lecturer in Victorian Literature in the School of English at the University of Leeds. He is author of many essays on Victorian literature and culture, and of the books John Ruskin (1999) and Late Ruskin: New Contexts (2000). With Dinah Birch he is preparing a collection, Ruskin and Gender.

Frederick S. Roden is Assistant Professor of English at the University of Connecticut. He has published several essays on Christina Rossetti, Oscar Wilde, and Hildegard von Bingen, and is currently at work on a book entitled Same-Sex Desire in Victorian Religious Culture.

J. R. Watson is Research Professor of English, University of Durham. He has particular interests in the Romantic and Victorian periods, and is author of Picturesque Landscape and English Romantic Poetry (1970),

Catherine Wells-Cole is Senior Lecturer in English Literature at the University of Surrey Roehampton. She is a member of the Charlotte M. Yonge Fellowship, and has written the Introduction to the Wordsworth Classics edition of The Heir of Redclyffe.