Culture and Gender in Leadership
Culture and Gender in Leadership
Perspectives from the Middle East and Asia

Edited by

James Rajasekar
Sultan Qaboos University, Sultanate of Oman

and

Loo-See Beh
University of Malaya, Malaysia
To my wife, Viji, and children, Akhil and Talia

J.R.

To family and friends

L.-S.B.
Contents

List of Tables and Figures ix
Acknowledgements xi
Notes on Contributors xii

Introduction and Overview 1
James Rajasekar and Loo-See Beh

Section I Leadership

1 Leadership in the East: A Social Capital Perspective
Loo-See Beh and William R. Kennan 9

2 Visionary Leadership in the Arab World: Its Nature and Outcomes in the Omani Workplace
James Rajasekar, Salem Al Abri and Yasser S. Tabouk 37

3 Leadership Perspective from the Philippines: Its Implications for Theory, Research and Practice
Francis Thaise A. Cimene and Alan N. Aladano 48

4 Conceptualizing Leadership for a Globalizing China
Xiao Ran Song and David Beckett 64

5 Evolving Agencies amid Rapid Social Change: Political Leadership and State–Civil Society Relations in China
Emile Kok-Kheng Yeoh 82

Section II Culture

6 Organizational Leadership Decision Making in Asia:
The Chinese Ways
Alexandre A. Bachkirov 111

7 Glocalization of Leadership and Cultural Implications for Higher Education: A German-Saudi Case
Anna M. Danielewicz-Betz 138
8 Face’s Consequences: The Impact of “Face” on Leadership, Management and Follower Behaviour in Malaysia 161
Brian T. O’Donoghue

9 Indian Leadership: Concept and Context 182
Rajesh Kumar and Madhavi Harshadrai Mehta

10 Transformational Leadership in the Saudi Arabian Cultural Context: Prospects and Challenges 200
Sami A. Khan and Deepanjana Varshney

11 Expatriate and Omani Workplace Relationships and Individual Performance 228
Stuart M. Schmidt, Unnikammu Moideen Kutty and Adil Al-Busaidi

Section III Gender and Leadership

12 Glass Fence Thicker than Glass Ceiling: The Puzzling Gaps of Women’s Leadership in Korea 253
Hunmin Kim

13 Why Women Are Missing: Women’s Leadership in Afghanistan’s Education Policy and Practice 275
Susan Wardak and Edna Mitchell

14 The Development of Arab Women Leaders: An Emirati Perspective 297
Sara Alhaj and Constance Van Horne

Index 317
Tables and Figures

Tables

2.1 Means, standard deviations, reliabilities and correlations among study variables 43
7.1 Pros and cons of Saudi pre-university education 152
8.1 Profile of interviewees 167
8.2 Interview responses overview 168
11.1 Descriptive statistics for supervisor–subordinate dyads 239
11.2 Descriptive statistics and correlations 240
11.3 Regression analysis for individual performance 242
12.1 Gender empowerment measure value and rank of some countries, 2002–2009 256
12.2 Rank by GDP 259
12.3 Access to tertiary education 262
12.4 Proportion of women in local councils 263
12.5 Proportion of women mayors and governors 264
12.6 Women government employees in managerial position 265
12.7 Proportion of women passing the state examinations 265
12.8 CEOs by industry and gender, 2009 267
12.9 Proportion of women managers in corporations 269
14.1 Breakdown of leader apprenticeship framework components 308

Figures

2.1 Representation of industries 42
4.1 The “onion diagram”: manifestations of culture at different levels of depth (Hofstede, 2001: 11) 71
4.2 The gear diagram of strategic leadership 78
10.1 A framework: leadership development in Saudi Arabia 221
11.1 Workplace relationships and individual performance 229
11.2 Predicted supervisor–subordinate relationships 235
12.1 Gender empowerment measure value of some countries in 2009 257
12.2 GDP per capita, 2010 (current US$) 259
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Table</th>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>12.3</td>
<td>Proportion of seats held by women in national parliaments in 2011</td>
<td>260</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12.4</td>
<td>Net entry rates of tertiary education: male and female</td>
<td>261</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12.5</td>
<td>Proportion of seats held by women in national parliament in Korea</td>
<td>263</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12.6</td>
<td>Women’s employment rate in OECD countries</td>
<td>268</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14.1</td>
<td>Leader apprenticeship framework</td>
<td>305</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Acknowledgements

We would like to thank, first and foremost, Virginia Thorp, senior commissioning editor, business and management, at Palgrave Macmillan, for approving this book. She was a solid supporter of this project from day one and whenever we wanted help she was always willing to help. We are indebted to her.

We are also thankful to Keri Dickens for her professional support during this project.

Our thanks also go out to the numerous contributors to this book.

Last, but not least, we would like to thank our friends for their timely advice and ideas, and our families for their patience, support and encouragement during the time-consuming process of preparing this book.
Contributors

Alan N. Aladano is the Assistant Regional Director for Operations of the Bureau of Fire Protection in Northern Mindanao, Philippines, with the officer rank of Fire Superintendent, and Professor of the Graduate School of Capitol University. He holds the following degrees: doctor of management, master in business management, master in public administration, bachelor of science in business administration, major in human resource development and bachelor of science in civil engineering. He is a prolific researcher and a lecturer of the Regional Training School of the Philippine Public Safety College. He also serves as a consultant of GH Research and Development Institute. Moreover, he is a member of the Philippine Association of Graduate Education and the Statistical Association of Region 10. E-mail: analadano@yahoo.com

Salem Al-Abri works as an assistant professor in the College of Economics and Political Science, Sultan Qaboos University, Sultanate of Oman. He was in the human resources management field in the oil industry prior to joining academia. He holds a PhD from the Australian National University, Australia. His research interests focus on leadership and various aspects of human resources management. He has conducted research on the interplay of culture and leadership styles in the Middle Eastern context, and he has taught at the undergraduate level as well as the postgraduate level on the MBA programme. E-mail: salemabri@squ.edu.om

Adil Al-Busaidi is a doctoral student in communication studies at Ohio University, US. His interests are in quantitative research methods and social network analysis. Organizational communication is his main focus in his doctoral programme with applied statistics as a minor. His current research interests are in the areas of small group communication, leadership communication, conflict and mediation, intercultural communication and the impact of computer-mediated communication on individuals, organizations and communities. He has served as a lecturer since 2007 at the College of Economics and Political Science, Sultan Qaboos University, Sultanate of Oman. He has taught courses including business communication, varieties of public and professional communication, and public speaking for business. Prior to teaching he worked as a computer network engineer in the telecommunications industry. His work has been published by the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers on system sciences.

Sarah Alhaj holds an MBA from the University of Strathclyde Business School, UK. Her dissertation focuses on the development of Emirati leaders. She has worked in various human resources positions, including training, manpower and planning, and change management. Currently she is working as a human resource manager with the National Cyber Security Authority, United Arab Emirates. E-mail: sarah.ae@gmail.com

Alexandre A. Bachkirov is a faculty member of the Management Department, College of Economics and Political Science, Sultan Qaboos University, Sultanate of Oman. Previously he held a number of academic posts internationally, including at the University of New York in Tirana, Albania, and the University of Fortaleza, Brazil. Before joining academia, he provided export consulting, negotiation and cross-cultural enhancement support for small and medium-sized enterprises in the UK. His industrial and commercial experience is complemented by wide-ranging academic expertise in the area of management. His scholarly interests include cross-cultural leadership, managerial judgement and decision making, the effects of national culture on decision making and the effects of emotion on decision making. As an academic, he has an overarching goal of contributing to research capability building in the Sultanate of Oman through his research, lectureship, consultancy and community service. E-mail: alexbach@yahoo.com

David Beckett is an associate professor at the University of Melbourne, Australia. He is Associate Dean (Staffing) of Melbourne Graduate School of Education and Associate Dean (International) of Melbourne School of Graduate Research. He is a fellow of the Australian Council for Educational Leaders, a fellow of the Philosophy of Education Society of Australasia and a member of the Philosophy of Education Society of Great Britain. He has published extensively and his research interests include adult education, policy analysis and epistemological, ontological and ethical perspectives on practice. E-mail: d.beckett@unimel.edu.au

Loo-See Beh is an associate professor and Deputy Dean (International and Higher Degree) at the Faculty of Economics & Administration,
University of Malaya, Malaysia. She was previously a visiting academic at Griffith University, Australia. Her areas of interest include public administration, public policy, human resource management, communication, organizational behaviour, leadership and political economy. She has published in both local and international publications, and she sits on the board of reviewers for local and international journals, books and theses. She has many years of teaching and other professional experience, and consultancy work experience with public institutions and other international bodies. E-mail: lucybeh@gmail.com

Anna M. Danielewicz-Betz is an associate professor in the Centre for Language Research, University of Aizu, Japan. Her research interests include critical discourse analysis, pragmatics, interdisciplinary studies (e.g. forensic linguistics, corporate discourse), management of higher education and leadership. E-mail: adanielewicz_betz@yahoo.com

Francis Thaise A. Cimene is the Dean of the Graduate School of Capitol University, Philippines. She holds a PhD in educational management. She was appointed by the Commission on Higher Education as one of the assessors in the Philippines for the Institutional Monitoring and Evaluation for Quality Assurance. She is a member of the National Research Council of the Philippines, the Philippine Association for Graduate Education in Region 10, President of the Council of Deans of Graduate Schools Region 10, President of the Statistical Association of Region 10, Chairman of the Board of the Immanuel Mission International School and Co-Founder of Glorious Hope Christian Center, Inc. She also serves as the editor of LAMDAG, the official journal of the Graduate School and the Capitol University Research and Extension Office. She has lectured extensively on effective leadership, strategic management, educational leadership and methods of research for government and non-government organizations. E-mail: francisthaisec@yahoo.com

William R. Kennan is Professor of Communication at Radford University, US, and Vice Provost for Academic Affairs there. He was previously the Associate Dean and Chair of the Department of Communication at Radford University. His interests include communication effectiveness and organizational performance, leadership, organizational change and development, and public relations practice. He has served as a consultant and trainer for several organizations, including American Electric Power, Volvo, Virginia Police Chiefs Association and the various Virginia State Departments. He has a keen interest in international and intercultural communication, especially with regard to Southeast Asia. E-mail: bill.kennan@gmail.com

Sami A. Khan is an associate professor in the Department of Human Resource Management, Faculty of Economics & Administration, King Abdul Aziz University, Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. Prior to that he was at Sultan Qaboos University, Sultanate of Oman. He is co-editor of Human Resource Management: Emerging Perspectives in the New Era (2000). He has also served as associate editor of Management & Change journal for four years. He is involved with Entrepreneurship Work in Organizations Requiring Leadership Development (E-WORLD), a global research project jointly run with faculty members of Missouri State University, US. His research interests lie in the areas of human resource strategy and interventions, performance management systems, leadership and teambuilding, and corporate social responsibilities. E-mail: khan.drsami@gmail.com

Hunmin Kim is a professor in the Department of Public Administration and Dean of Scranton College, Ewha University, Korea. She has a master’s and a PhD from Harvard University, US. Her research interests are in women issues, local government innovation, urban development and related areas. She serves on several committees, including the Presidential Commission on Policy Planning and the Presidential Committee on Government Innovation and Decentralisation of the Government of Korea. E-mail: hmkim@ewha.ac.kr

Rajesh Kumar is an assistant professor at the Chandragupta Institute of Management, India. His research focuses on organizational behaviour. He has worked for seven years in various positions with development organizations in the areas of networking and programme evaluation of various developmental projects. E-mail: rajesh108r@gmail.com

Madhavi Harshadrai Mehta is an associate professor with more than 15 years of experience in teaching, research and consultancy with institutes such as the Social Development Centre Academy of Human Resources Development, K.J. Somaiya Institute of Management Studies and Research, Mumbai, non-governmental organizations and the Institute of Management Anand. She has published numerous articles in both local and international publications and is a reviewer both for the International Journal of Rural Management and for Oxford University Press in the areas of organizational behaviour and human resources. E-mail: madhavi@irma.ac.in

Edna Mitchell is Professor Emeritus at Mills College, US, where she was previously Head of the Department of Education, Director of Graduate Studies, Director of Alternative Programs for Working Women and Founding Director of the Mills College Women’s Leadership Institute. She has worked as a consultant with the Ministry of Education in Afghanistan since 2004. She was a visiting professor and Acting Associate Dean in Family Studies at Zayed University in Dubai and Abu Dhabi in 2002, and a visiting Fulbright Professor at the Jozsef Attila University of Science and Technology in 1994. She was awarded a congressional fellowship from the Society for Research in Child Development to work as a senior fellow in the US Congress in 1980. Her research and writing have been largely on women’s leadership and cultural issues in play and child development. E-mail: ednamitchell@yahoo.com

Unnikammu Moideenkutty is an associate professor in the Department of Management, College of Economics and Political Science, Sultan Qaboos University, Sultanate of Oman. He has a PhD in business administration from the Fox School of Business and Management, Temple University, US. His research interests include organizational citizenship behaviour, social exchange processes in organizations and strategic human resource management. His research papers have been published in international journals, including Applied Psychology: An International Review, Organization Management Journal, Personnel Review and Asian Journal of Management Cases. E-mail: moideenkutty@gmail.com

Brian T. O’Donoghue is Academic Director for NOESIS Ex Ed, one of the leading providers of adult professional education in Malaysia. He was formerly Acting Dean of the Faculty of Business for INTI College, Malaysia. He holds a master's in business studies from University College Dublin, Ireland. He is a member of the International Leadership Association and the Chartered Institute of Marketing. He has more than 20 years’ leadership and management experience across various roles in industry and education in the UK, China and Malaysia, and he has spoken at various industry and academic conferences in those countries and the US. He has worked in management and consultancy roles for companies such as SPAR, Cadbury and Johnson & Johnson. He lectures on various MBA, professional and undergraduate business programmes. E-mail: brian@noesis.com.my
James Rajasekar is an assistant professor in the Management Department at the College of Economics and Political Science, Sultan Qaboos University, Sultanate of Oman. He specializes in the fields of strategic management and international business, and he has taught both undergraduate and postgraduate students in the US, the Middle East and the Indian subcontinent. He has been a consultant with several governmental agencies, and public and private sector organizations, and he has trained middle- and senior-level executives. He has contributed to institution-building and corporate governance by being on the board of the governing bodies of academic institutions. He was also one of the country coordinators for India for the GLOBE Project – Phase III between 2000 and 2003. E-mail: jrajas@gmail.com

Stuart M. Schmidt is Professor of Human Resource Management in the Fox School of Business and Management, Temple University, US, where he teaches postgraduate and undergraduate courses in management, and power and influence in organizations. His PhD in industrial relations was obtained at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, US. His research spans several fields, including leadership, organizational politics, dynamics of virtual authority relationships, cross-cultural team relationships and the power of wielding power. His research findings have been published in numerous journals, including the Journal of Applied Psychology, Decision Sciences, Administration and Society, Human Relations, Organizational Dynamics, Administrative Science Quarterly, Psychology Today and even the National Enquirer. He is also known for his training and assessment instruments, such as the Profiles of Organizational Influence Strategies instruments and training programmes. E-mail: schmidt@temple.edu

Xiao Ran Song is a marketing executive with Bupa International, in Shanghai, China, and a PhD candidate at the University of Melbourne, Australia, researching management and international communication. She has been working in two fields – business and education – in both China and Australia. She has been a manager and consultant for 11 years, with expertise in marketing and communication, management and training gained in the commercial and education sectors. She has a master’s in commerce from Macquarie University, Australia, and has been working on managerial positions in multinational companies in China and Australia. She is also an experienced English language teacher, with a TESOL qualification from the University of Melbourne, Australia. E-mail: rebecca.song@bupa.com.cn
Notes on Contributors

Yasser S. Tabouk is Head of Customer Care and Lease Management in Knowledge Oasis Muscat (KOM) Information Technology Park. He researches business development and case-study analysis in addition to managing key functions related to lease management. He graduated from the College of Economics & Political Sciences, Sultan Qaboos University, Sultanate of Oman, in 2004. He worked as a marketing specialist at the Ministry of Sports Affairs before joining KOM. He received an MBA from the same university in 2010. He is actively involved in research on technology issues and has presented papers at international conferences. E-mail: aziboon@yahoo.com

Constance Van Horne is Assistant Professor of Management at Zayed University in Abu Dhabi. She is extensively involved in student projects, including the Men’s Business Association, the Men’s Entrepreneurship Club and study abroad projects. She is the project leader for the 2011 UAE Global Entrepreneurship Monitor Report and has worked on several Middle East-based collaborative research projects with researchers from the MENA region, in particular North Africa, for several years. E-mail: constance.vanhorne@zu.ac.ae

Deepanjana Varshney is currently working as an assistant professor in the Human Resources Management Department at the Faculty of Economics & Administration, King Abdulaziz University, Saudi Arabia. She has 11 years’ academic experience in teaching, research and consultancy work. She has a number of international publications to her credit. She has been associated academically with different universities and institutions in the past. Her areas of research include leadership, group dynamics and dysfunctional employee behaviour. E-mail: dvfaculty@yahoo.com

Susan Wardak is Director General of the Teacher Education Department of the Ministry of Education of Afghanistan, and is a special advisor to the minister. She is responsible for the training of teachers both pre-service and in-service through teacher education colleges and through in-service training workshops and courses for the nation’s teachers. She was born in Afghanistan but went with her family as a young child to find refuge in Canada from the Taliban. She returned to Afghanistan in 2003. She received her master’s in education leadership and research from Karlstad University, Sweden. Preceding her appointment to the Ministry of Education, she worked with UNESCO in Afghanistan revising the curricula and rewriting textbooks for elementary schools. She is one of the few women in a position of leadership in the government and is a strong voice for women’s participation as leaders throughout all levels of society. She is the chair of a United Nations committee on gender equity and energetically promotes a variety of programmes through this group. E-mail: susanwardak2@hotmail.com

Emile Kok-Kheng Yeoh is Director and Associate Professor of the Institute of China Studies, University of Malaya, Malaysia. He acquired his PhD from the University of Bradford, UK, in 1998 and his research interests include institutional economics, China studies, decentralization and fiscal federalism, and socioracial diversity and the role of the state in economic development. His works have been published in journals including The Copenhagen Journal of Asian Studies, Geojournal: An International Journal on Human Geography and Environmental Sciences, Journal of Asian Public Policy, International Journal of China Studies, Malaysian Journal of Economic Studies and the Copenhagen Discussion Paper series. Recent books, as both editor and contributor, include Emerging Trading Nation in an Integrating World (2007), Facets of a Transforming China (2008), China in the World (2008), Regional Political Economy of China Ascendant (2009) and China-ASEAN Relations (2009). E-mail: emileyeo@gmail.com