ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

It was Phillip Zarrilli who suggested that I write an article on Method acting for Alison Hodge’s Twentieth-Century Actor Training. This collection would not have come about without his thoughtful encouragement. This book was published with the assistance of the Frederick W. Hilles Publication Fund of Yale University. My assistant, Jan E. Foery, and her assistants, Maria-Christina Oliveras and Abigail Sendrow, came to my aid whenever I faced computer problems or office crises. My colleagues and students at Yale have consistently inspired and challenged me. Steven Bayne is, as always, a great critic and friend. Polina Klimovitskaya has been a great resource on Stanislavsky. I want to thank all of the contributors; they have given this work a depth that could not have been achieved by one voice. I deeply appreciate all the support from St. Martin’s Senior Editor, Michael Flamini, and his staff, particularly Alan Bradshaw, Amy McDermott, Amanda Johnson, and the anonymous copy editor. My greatest support comes from Lynda. I also want to thank my parents, who taught me to appreciate passion for ideas, and my teachers throughout my life, especially Paul Mann, Barbara Loden, and Kim Stanley.
